

Jubilee likely to open in January

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Despite extraordinary efforts to get Jubilee Casino's doors open quickly, January is its best bet, State Gaming Commission Director Paul Harvey said Thursday.

Harvey made the statement to an overflow crowd during a speech to the Hancock County Tourism and Gaming Association.

In highly candid remarks, the director also said the gaming industry's fear of competition — not concern for the environment or other site issues — is the driving force behind a move to block casino operation in Hancock and Harrison counties accessed by I-10.

Harvey also lashed out at the revolving door effect Mississippi has seen with state gaming officials rotating to jobs with casinos.

He took several questions from the audience concerning the long-awaited opening of Jubilee Casino at Bayou Caddy in Hancock County.

One prospective employee said many of the hundreds who have trained to work in the casino are now unemployed and have no money for Christmas.

Harvey said he and two of the three state Gaming Commission commissioners were prepared to meet at any time during the holidays to give final approval for the casino's opening. One of the commissioners plans to be in Europe for the holidays, Harvey said.

Already at Harvey's suggestion, Jubilee has applied for some of the required gaming license investigations to be done by Colorado state gaming officials.

He said Thursday that two of the six Jubilee principals who were to have been investigated have been temporarily "pushed aside" to expedite the process.

Harvey said the possibility of hiring private sector auditors to complete financial investigations of the principals is being discussed. That's because state Tax Commission officials plan to give state auditors a vacation from Dec. 20 to Jan. 3, Harvey said.

"I'm as frustrated as you are," he told the audience about the Jubilee opening. But, he said, Jubilee's application is "on the front burner...and my hope of hopes is that they can be (open) in December."

He said as soon as the necessary investigations are wrapped up, he would call a special commission meeting to issue an operating license and give the final go-ahead for opening. "I don't care if it's Christmas Eve...I'll call a special meeting of the commission."

Harvey said later, however, more likely it would be January before all the steps are complete.

MISSISSIPPI LANDING

Michael Ladner, president of Hancock County

Board of Supervisors, asked Harvey if the $100 million Mississippi Landing project is alive in Hancock County.

"No," said Harvey of the development once proposed for Highway 603's juncture with I-10. While the project's backers contended the site was part of the Bay of St. Louis, opponents including the Mississippi Casino Operators Association, claimed that it was part of the Jordan River, an illegal site.

Harvey noted that the same developers now are proposing a site on the Bay in Harrison County. The proposal ran into opposition, however, from the same casino operators association during a meeting earlier this month.

Association director Wilson Carroll protested that allowing casino operation at the Harrison County site, also accessible by I-10, effectively

Boys Town dedicates room to William P. Kenny

BY AMY PICKICH
Boys Town of New Orleans dedicated a room to the late William P. Kenny of Bay St. Louis, December 11, during the dedication of the renovated emergency shelter for children.

More than 300 troubled children will be served annually through Father Flanagan's Boys Town, formerly the "Greenhouse" at 700 Frenchman St. in New Orleans.

Boys Town is a short-term emergency residential center for abused, abandoned, homeless and runaway boys and girls ages 12 to 17. The facility will care for 16 children at a time.

Kenny, born May 14, 1924, in Omaha, Nebraska, became a citizen of Bay St. Louis June 8, 1933, when he was nine years old. Flanagan took in the homeless boy, even though he did not care for boys under 12.

Dahlgren family finds comfort with news of successful transplants

BY AMY PICKICH

Sitting next to the Christmas tree in the Dahlgren family's home is a memorial to nine-year-old Adam Joseph Dahlgren, who died Oct. 20 after being taken off life support systems at Oschner hospital in New Orleans.

A rosary drapes his picture, which is surrounded by religious articles and personal items.

Adam, a fourth grader at Bay Middle School, was struck by a car Oct. 19 on Old Spanish Trail. He suffered multiple fractures and severe head injuries.

His parents, Arthur and Elaine Dahlgren of Bay St. Louis, recently received a letter from the Louisiana Organ Procurement Agency informing them of recipients of their son's donated organs.

Elaine Dahlgren said it is comforting to know that others will live on because of him, "especially children, so their parents can see them grow up."

She said the family would

New casino agreement nets more $$$ for Bay

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis may be in for a major windfall. Under a new financial pact with Casino Magic, the city is getting a percent of the casino's net gambling winnings. While that's calculated to produce $2.7 million for municipal coffers this year, it may be a whole lot more, says Mayor Eddie Favre. The city school district also is set to get a cut of the casino's gaming take.

Before the casino started operating in September 1992, the city agreed to accept $1.78 million in payments over the year in lieu of a per-head boarding fee from casino patrons.

That arrangement has been scrapped in favor of the percentage agreement, giving the city 2.3 percent of the net gambling proceeds. The city school system gets .4 percent.

Budgeted estimates show the city taking in $2.7 million and the schools $450,000 during the year, based on the new gaming revenue percentage agreement. (In addition, the city is budgeted to get almost $400,000 in other fees from the casino.)

September's check from the new percentage arrangement came to $365,000. In October, the city decided to let the schools have .4 percent of the revenue. That left the city with $323,000 for October, and $50,000 for the schools.

At a rate of $320,000 a month, the city would rake in over $3.8 million this year — more than doubling last year's casino revenues, and beating the city's own estimate by more than $1 million. The schools would take in $600,000.

"The rate will far exceed the estimates... hopefully," Favre said Wednesday. But, he added, city officials took a conservative approach in budgeting the casino revenues rather than risk disappointment later.

Favre noted that additional casinos are opening along the coast, and in New Orleans, potentially diluting Casino Magic's revenues.

The city has big plans for its casino dollars, including major outlays for such capital items as new water and sewer lines, paving and drainage improvements, expanding the city-county library and buying and renovating the Amtrak depot.

Heitzmann named Fed. Employee of the Year

A Naval Oceanographic Office (NAVOCEANO) employee received the 1993 Federal Employee of the Year award from the Mississippi Coast Association of Federal Administrators (MCAFA) Thursday.

During the annual awards dinner held at the Officers' Club at Keesler Air Force Base, the Federal Employee of the Year award was presented to NAVOCEANO's Robert Heitzmann by U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor. This annual award recognizes outstanding federal employees for excellence in their community service participation as well as in their profession.

Heitzmann is facilities and environmental program manager with NAVOCEANO, which is located at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center in Hancock County. He was nominated for the award in large part due to his extensive community service.

Some of Heitzmann's community activities include serving as troop committeeman of local youth in conjunction with the Boy Scouts of America; member of the pastoral council, finance committee and annual Crab Festival committees of Our Lady of the Gulf church, Bay St. Louis; various ad hoc church sponsored activities; and financial chairperson of Stennis Space Center's Special Olympics.

As facilities and environmental program manager with NAVOCEANO, Heitzmann coordinates a broad range of diverse technical and logistic activities to ensure that the office has the needed facilities and receives the needed services to efficiently perform its operational mission.

Taylor, who assisted in the presentation of the certificates to the nominees and the award to Heitzmann, stated he was very happy to be at the ceremony and that he drove all night long just to make it. "Heitzmann is not only very active with NAVOCEANO out at Stennis Space Center," Taylor said, "but he is also very active in my home town and in my home parish."

Fourteen other federal employees were presented certificates in honor of their nominations by their federal organizations. They were Supervisor of Shipbuilding at Ingalls' Steven East; Keesler Air Force Base's Steve Kelley, Jimmie Roy and Sheila Shaner; NASA's Vince Andres, the Naval Oceanography Command's Thomas Fredian, and the Naval Oceanographic Office's Warren Rumm, all three with the John C. Stennis Space Center; the Naval Construction Battalion Center's Teresa D'Angelo, Linda ident is Stennis Space Center Director Roy Estess. Estess, who also served as chairman of the recognition and awards committee, explained to those present at the dinner that MCAFA is unique in that the federal agencies on the Gulf Coast employing over 25,000 workers take advantage of the opportunity to work together to share ideas and information.

"One of the most important things MCAFA does is recognize the Federal Employee of the Year," said Estess. He also explained the careful nomination and selection process to those attending the dinner.

Capt. John Lehman of the Naval Construction Battalion Center in Gulfport recognized the federal employees who generously contributed over $620,000 to the 1993 Combined Federal Campaign, about 15 percent over the goal they had set.

Introductory and closing remarks at the awards dinner were offered by this year's MCAFA president, Capt. J.A. Carnevale of the U.S. Navy. Secretary-treasurer for 1993 was Jerry Walters.

The chartered purpose of MCAFA is to promote understanding and cooperation among the several federal agencies and the communities in which they are located and to provide governmental officials with information about the various federal activities on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

LIMITING COMPETITION

"You're working with another issue here," Harvey said Thursday, "I don't mean to offend the industry, but this is what's going on as I perceive it. All this... dance that was going on at the last commission meeting about siting and the environment and all that stuff, that wasn't the issue. The issue was competition, and the industry is trying to limit competition. That's what the association is for."

Harvey said the sites' proximity to I-10 alarms existing casinos because they fear that Louisiana gamblers would frequent those facilities instead of existing casinos on the Gulf and the Bay.

"Probably not a very politic thing to say," Harvey said of his own remarks. "But I think that's the truth. And we're not limiting the industry in Mississippi under this commission. We're going to let free enterprise do its number. These are businessmen; they understand the situation that's going on. I would rather not see that kind of stuff go on, but I think that really what was happening" with the opposition.

Harvey then asked Jubilee's George Baxter for a reaction to his comments. "We just wanted a level playing field," Baxter said.

"Yeah, I do too," Harvey said. "It's the American way. Free enterprise works great."

On other matters during his remarks, Harvey stressed the Gaming Commission's regulatory role. He said it's critical that the commission be able to keep "undesireable" criminal elements out of the gaming industry in Mississippi.

"In this business, you don't have the Mafia on the casino floor. They're buried about three deep, and that's why we're so interested in the financing" of the casinos, he said.

"Where is this money coming from? Not 'where did you get it yesterday,' but who really owns the money?"

Harvey emphasized that the Gaming Commission has a small, inadequate staff to deal with the burgeoning gaming industry, and said it's "dangerous" ethically that the state pays its investigators so little.

He said Mississippi's entry into the gaming industry saw a "little bit bumpy" start, with loss of five directors in 18 months.

"That's absolutely insane," Harvey said. "When I got out of the Air Force, I was prohibited from working in the defense industry for seven years. I think that might not be a bad thing to do."

Harvey was commander of Keesler Air Force Base before his military retirement.

The Christmas season, with all of its joyfulness, is especially meaningful for us, as it marks the time of your passing on to be with the One whose birth we celebrate. Treasured memories of the many Christmases you spent with us will always be a part of our tradition, and our love for you will continue to live on in our lives and in the lives of our children.

As time progresses irreversibly toward God's hidden destiny, our lives are just tiny droplets in a rushing river of humanity. Already you have grandchildren that have missed the opportunity to know you, and more are on the way. Even as they are born we are edging ever closer to the day when each of us, at God's appointed time, will join ranks with you in eternity. We cherish the time we had with you and will carry loving thoughts of you in our hearts forever.

like to know more about the recipients, or even one day meet them. However, the recipients would have to come forward.

The Dahlgren's decision to donate their son's organs helped four people:

—a six-year-old Mississippi boy received his liver. He was not expected to live much longer before the transplant, but is now improving;

—a 40-year-old Louisiana man received his right kidney. The married, father of five children, had been waiting 12 months for a transplant;

—a 35-year-old Arkansas man received his left kidney. He is a married, father of one, who had been on dialysis for three years and is now expected to make a full recovery; —and a nine-year-old girl from the Midwest received his lungs. She suffered from pulmonary hypertension and had been waiting six months for a transplant. Her physicians are expecting a full recovery.

Elaine Dahlgren said the family is very appreciative of the support and cards they have received.

Her plans now include working with William "Bicycle Bill" Dukate, from whom she received a letter of support, to get asphalt shoulders installed in Hancock County to improve cycling safety.

Dukate recently presented the Hancock County Planning Commission with information of possible funds for such facilities under the ISTE Act.

In the fourth period, the Rocks took a commanding 10 point lead on a Terry Lawyer's reverse slam-dunk that sent the spectators into a frenzy.

However, the frenzy didn't last too long as the Crusaders canned five straight points to put themselves back into the ballgame.

Down to the last seconds of the ballgame, the Rocks had a chance to tie the game as Brandon Benoit's three point attempt sailed wide left. The final score was 56-53.

Terry Lawyer led the Rocks with 22 points and 13 rebounds, followed by Vince Moran who chipped in 13 points. Hector Hernandez played a fine defensive ballgame with 10 boards while canning 8 points.

Kenny

During his stay at Boys Town, Kenny was the basketball team mascot, a member of the band and choir, baseball league captain and an honor roll student. He was "a dear little boy," wrote one teacher on his report card.

It was Planagan's desire that Kenny receive every opportunity to develop into manhood under the best possible guidance. On Nov. 19, 1939, he left Boys Town to attend St. Stanislaus in Bay St. Louis under the care of Brother Peter and the sponsorship of Mr. Walter Gex. He graduated from SSC in 1943.

Kenny entered the Armed Services as a member of the Army Air Corps in July 1943. He received several honors and awards and was honorably discharged in December, 1946.

He attended the University of Mississippi for two and a half years and was then employed by the Mississippi Highway Patrol in 1950.

Kenny received many awards and citations from the Highway Patrol and the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He was selected as Bay St. Louis' outstanding citizen in 1955 and 1956.

He was killed in a automobile accident Dec. 23, 1967, while on duty with the Highway Patrol.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elsie Kenny, and two sons, David Kenny and Michael Kenny, all of Bay St. Louis.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Christmas is fast approaching and we still have several activities coming up this week.

This afternoon, tickets are still available for the Bay Area Chorale and Jefferson Symphony Orchestra's Christmas concert at 3 p.m. at Bay High School's auditorium.

The program is presented by the Diamondhead's Performing Arts Society and is said to be one of the most outstanding performances of holiday selections in our area.

This evening will mark the sixth Community Christmas Caroling at Ruth's Bakery, Court Street, Bay St. Louis.

The caroling begins at 5 p.m. and anyone interested in singing along can come in and join, Ruth Thompson reports.

Spectators are welcome, too.

Thompson said that St. Stanislaus student Adam Hanes will be playing the piano for the caroling.

Sounds like it will be great fun, so come out and join in the fun.

On Wednesday there will be an open house and story hour at the Hancock County Library, Highway 90, Bay St. Louis.

Events begin at 10:30 a.m. and it is reported that Santa will be on hand to take those last minute requests for special gifts. Refreshments will be served.

Diamondhead's Parade of Lights is set for 5:30 p.m. next Saturday.

Diamondhead's promoters requests that you come see the spectacular array of holiday lights and decorations in the floating parade. This is a unique event for the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

There is no admission charge and children will be able to visit with Santa at the Ship Store.

I hope you will take advantage of the many opportunities during this coming week in preparation for Christmas.

This is a bit late, but I would like to wish a belated birthday greeting to Mr. Peter Noto, who celebrated his 85th yesterday.

I have known Mr. Pete all of my life, since my father worked with him for many years on the L&N Railroad.

Mr. Pete, former Hancock County Constable, has also been a regular at the Courthouse and is well known.

One of his daughters called me late Wednesday to mention that his birthday was going to be yesterday.

I wish Mr. Pete many more birthdays.

If you haven't finished or started your Christmas shopping, it is best you begin soon.

Remember, it is best to shop at home.

When you shop at home, you help your community in so many ways.

Best of Christmas shopping to each and every one of you.

Santa comes to Kiln

Billie Faye Lyons, left, welcomes everyone to the annual North Hancock Business & Professional Association's Christmas tree lighting at Kiln last Sunday. Some 130 area youngsters visited with Santa and received a special gift. Johnny Richard, right, association board member, helped with the program. The tree is located on the parking lot of Rooster's at the Highway 603-Kiln/DeLisle crossroads. The association also served hot chocolate, apple cider, hot coffee and pastries. ## LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

How about no taxation without representation

Dear Editor:

Mississippi is in dire need of a modern day version of the Boston Tea Party.

We are, perhaps, the only state offering taxation without representation! I refer, of course, to school district taxes on business, homes and autos - raised annually at the whim of an appointed official - needed or not.

Naturally a bureaucrat tends to justify any budget increase... only those responsible for authorizing those tax increases know all the details... and like all politicians, they speak in gobble-de-gook!

Since its the nineties - the time to be politically correct - let's ask our Legislature to correct this injustice.

Dealer school should consider helping their needy students

Dear Editor:

Many new people have been attending the dealer school in Waveland and many of them in need, have been requesting aid and assistance from a local charitable organization.

Since the dealer school is a profit-making organization, perhaps receiving funding in some form itself, would it not be just, ethical and right for the dealer school to help their students by contributing to the local charitable organization which indirectly is helping make their school a success?

Sincerely,
Yvonne Churchill Hasney

Pearlington Cemetery Assn. in need of additional fence

Dear Editor:

We, of the Pearlington Cemetery Association, feel that a word of explanation is in order, regarding the photographs and "Quotes" of last week.

Pearlington Cemetery (black and white) is the final resting place of the oldest and most influential settlers of Hancock County.

It was damaged by Hurricane Camille and badly in need of restoration when our volunteer group was formed in 1984 following the death of five-year-old "Jenny" Wilson.

Our plea for help was met by an outpouring of love and labor from both the white and black citizens of Pearlington.

We removed truckloads of debris, repaired stones, restored tombs (one of which was re-inforced with saw blades from the old mill) another, that of General Nixon, War of 1812.

We scrubbed, bleached and polished every stone in the cemetery.

Hancock County funds on labor were not involved in any of this.

The wrought iron gate and front fence were given as a memorial to a beautiful little girl who deserved a beautiful place to sleep. The remainder of the front fence was paid by donations.

We have tried as our means would permit to keep the grass cut, but we desperately need enforceable rules and regulations for burial and maintenance. As a result, this beautiful, historical place is in danger of being lost.

A fence around the remainder of the cemetery would certainly provide some protection and would be deeply appreciated.

Mrs. H.E. Wilson
Pearlington Cemetery Assn.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi Economic Council

Government payrolls in Mississippi continue to grow.

This fact is again confirmed by the latest numbers from the Mississippi Employment Security Commission's "Mississippi Labor Market" publication. Printed monthly, it tracks changes in the state's non-agricultural labor force.

For August, each category of state government surveyed by the Commission (state government, state education, local government, local education) had a significant increase in employees this August compared to August 1992. The greatest increase came in local education with an increase of 4,200 additional full- or part-time wage and salary employees.

There were 180,900 people paid by state and local governments during August — an increase of 6,500 from the same month in 1992. Almost one in every five Mississippians who held a nonfarm job in August worked for state or local government. That includes all levels of education.

The only government sector that saw a reduction in employment from a year ago was the federal government category.

Mississippi taxpayers must ask if increased government payrolls has improved or expanded services, or if the continued growth simply adds pressure to increase taxes.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Johnson's newest book tells a lot about Miss. politics

Erle Johnston, the onetime country editor, director of the state Sovereignty Commission in the old segregation days, and consummate political campaign operative over three decades, comes out this week with his third book, Politics: Mississippi Style.

It's a 350-page smorgasboard of tasty yarns distilled from Mississippi's political history over the past half century, seasoned with all the dirty tricks and buffoonery that have marked most campaigns for governor and other high office in this state during that time.

Johnston was in the rare position to observe many of the major political campaigns from close range in his role as an early-day, penny-ante Mississippi version of media consultants such as James Carville and Harry Dent, who have built candidate image-making into a highly-paid profession.

Back in the 1940s, the 50s and 60s, Johnston would leave his wife, Faye, in charge of his newspaper, the Scott County Times, and hook on with a candidate for governor or Senate to handle publicity for the duration of the campaign, then go back to newspapering when the race was over.

His only stint in a political job was first as public relations director of the old Sovereignty Commission under Ross Barnett in the early 60s, then executive director of the same agency under Paul Johnson Jr. in the mid 60s. It has been an embarrassment to him in later years as the gestapo-like tactics of the Sovereignty Commission have become known.

But Johnston is a survivor, and he has built a new, modestly successful career as a book author, first his I Rolled With Ross in 1980, and then Mississippi's Defiant Years in 1990.

Now Politics: Mississippi Style represents his most expansive effort to date, spanning political campaigns and careers in Mississippi all the way from Theodore G. Bilbo to William Winter, stopping with Winter's victory (after three tries) in 1979.

Across the book's pages march such unforgettable characters as "Blow Torch" Mason, "Peachtree" Harper, Jimmy Swan, Prentiss Walker, the chicken plucking Congressman, "Hacksaw" Mary Cain and many others who in their time enriched the quaintness of Mississippi politics.

In writing his book, Johnston did dozens of interviews with old politicians who are still around, and with many who had been around the political camps in years gone by, and, with the aid of helpers, sifted through newspaper clippings and microfilm to glean names of who had done what and when.

Johnston relates some of his favorite experiences in his campaign days, such as his discovery during John Stennis' 1947 Senatorial campaign that a $1 classified ad sent to newspapers plugging his candidate was a cheap, effective way to get exposure when you had very little campaign money.

"After awhile," Johnston recalls, "all the other candidates in the race caught on and started doing the same thing."

There's the yarn in a chapter on the presidential campaign of 1968 of Alabama Gov. George Wallace of how $450,000 in U.S. currency in denominations ranging from $1 to $100 raised at a Wallace rally and banquet in Jackson was stuffed into four large mail sacks and compacted by stomping on the bags.

The main "stomper," Johnston writes, was former Mississippi State football great, Shorty McWilliams of Meridian, who was a volunteer worker for Wallace. McWilliams, trying to drop off a bag of some $100,000 in bills to the Wallace suite in the Heidelberg Hotel, was blocked by a Secret Service agent from entering the floor.

McWilliams quipped that if he had to take the bag downstairs again "you can look for me in Acapulco." After awhile, everything was straightened out, and all the money found its way to the Wallace campaign.

Politics: Mississippi Style ($23.50) goes on sale Saturday with a book signing by Johnston at Lemuria Book Store in Banner Hall, Jackson.

Duran's 100th fight at casino Tues.

Roberto Duran, the four-time world champion and one of boxing's all-time great performers, will make his next appearance at Casino Magic a special one. Duran has now earned a #8 ranking with the World Boxing Council, and a #9 ranking with the World Boxing Association (Middleweight Divisions).

Currently 90-9 with 62 knockouts as a pro, Duran stopped Sean Fitzgerald in dramatic fashion in his last outing here August 17, and served notice he will be a contender to be heard from again in the middleweight division.

Much hoopla has been made about Duran's 100th pro fight, and Casino Magic outbid several other sites, including Las Vegas, Atlantic City, and Montreal, and will host this historic event on Tuesday, December 14, in the Casino Magic Arena.

The fight will be televised live coast-to-coast as part of USA Network's Tuesday Night Fights, the ninth time this year that the USA cameras will be on the Casino Magic property.

Duran's opponent will be Tony Menefee of Lincoln, Nebraska, who stands at 19-1 with 10 KO's. Menefee is currently rated #15 as a super middleweight by the United States Boxing Association, #12 by the North American Boxing Federation, and #9 by the International Boxing Council.

The co-main event will be a ten-round heavyweight contest featuring former national amateur champion Samson Po'uha (11-0, 11 KO's) of Utah, as he faces his toughest career test against Detroit's Eric "The Whip" Curry (21-3). Po'uha (Poo-ah) appeared at Casino Magic on the November 16 show, as he banged out an eighth-round TKO win over veteran Mike Rouse, in what was the farthest distance he's gone to date.

Big and strong, and with extremely heavy hands, Po'uha is generally regarded as one of the hardest punchers in the division. He'll have his hands full with Curry, a slick boxer who gave Alex Garcia 12 rounds of hell in an NABF title fight earlier this year, and who is a formidable foe when in shape.

Tickets are $60, $30 and $15 and are available at Casino Magic. Discounts are offered with presentation of a Louisiana or Mississippi driver's license.

Rocks split with Warriors

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
The St. Stanislaus Rock-chaws split two games with the visiting d'Iberville Warriors on December 7.

In junior varsity action, the Rocks defeated the Warriors by the score of 32-29.

Inexperience showed in this low scoring game, according to SSC Coach Jerry Spell.

After jumping out to a 16-4 first period lead and a 27-12 halftime lead, the Rocks let the Warriors battle back into it during the second half.

The Rocks scored just 5 points in the second half and barely hung on for the win.

Kelton Thompson led the Rocks with 12 points followed by Jason Kirschenheuter with 6. Kirschenheuter was perfect from the charity stripe for the night going 4 for 4.

Coach Jerry Spell commented, "We looked real sluggish tonight. There are some aspects of our game that we need to strengthen."

VARSITY

In varsity action, the Rocks dropped a 48-40 decision to the Warriors.

The Rocks had their lowest point total of the season scoring just 40 points for the game.

Leading the way for the Rocks were Terry Lawyer with 13 points and 13 boards followed by Hector Hernandez with 9 points and 8 boards.

The Rocks were only down 23-22 at the half. It was the third period that saw the Rocks disintegrate being outscored 11-4.

Coach Jay Ladner stated, "We came out sluggish and never recovered. We have to work on our intensity as we get deeper into the schedule."

TIMBERLINE

By Mark Jamieson
County Forester

Pine seedlings available

Tree-planting season has arrived, and landowners planning to plant trees this winter should be making final preparations.

Those who have not yet ordered their seedlings still have time. The Mississippi Forestry Commission still has available genetically improved ("MOST") pine seedlings, specially grown for each area of the state, along with several species of hardwood.

Forestry Commission nurserymen report that the early cold weather was beneficial. Trees are entering dormancy and are sufficiently "hardened" for lifting from nursery beds and subsequent delivery to all 82 counties.

Landowners should also have made arrangements for getting their trees planted. The County Forester's office can provide the names of all the hand-planting and machine-planting vendors who operate in this area.

It's up to landowners to contact a vendor and make necessary arrangements to get their trees in the ground. It is recommended that landowners enter into a written contract with the vendor. Verbal agreements sometimes lead to needless confusion and misunderstandings.

If you need help ordering trees or locating a vendor, call 255-4885 or come by the County Forester's office located in Kiln.

Firm discipline helps correct dogs' jumping

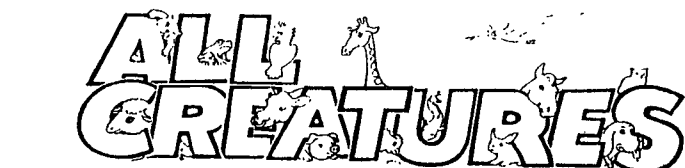

By Dr. Wynn Jones
Veterinarian
MSU College
of Veterinary Medicine

"I have a 2-year-old male sheltie who is good-natured and basically well-behaved, but he gets very excited when he sees me after I get home from work. He jumps up on me continuously, so much that it is annoying. It wouldn't be so bad if he only did it to me, but unfortunately no one is safe who walks through my door. He is never vicious, just sort of a nuisance. How can I curb his enthusiasm?"

Many dog owners think it's cute when their puppy greets them by jumping and climbing all over them. That behavior loses its appeal when the puppy grows into an adult dog. Even though a dog is not aggressive, he could hurt someone, especially a child. Jumping on people should not be tolerated, especially if you don't want your friends to avoid coming to your house.

A good way to correct this behavior is to reprimand the dog, placing him in a prone position for about 30 seconds. While he is calm praise and pet him, but if he struggles, raise your voice and place more pressure on the scruff of his neck.

If the dog also jumps on people when you walk him outside, jerk his leash and firmly tell him "no."

Some dogs who are a little more excitable or stubborn may require a little firmer handling. When the dog jumps up, grab his front paws and push him backward until he falls over, and tell him "no." Or you can bend your knee as he jumps up and bump him in the chest and tell him "no."

Remember, you must be firm and consistent if you want to change this behavior. Don't expect your dog to change overnight — it can take up to four weeks to correct the jumping habit.

"I always thought cats were supposed to be independent animals. But I have a Siamese who lately cries all the time, especially at night. She seems to only be content sitting on my lap or sleeping on my bed, but I don't really want her on the bed. I still love her but she is driving me crazy."

The first thing you need to do, if you haven't already is to make sure there is no medical problem causing her to cry. A visit to your veterinarian can establish that.

If she is healthy, is it possible your cat is lonely? Has your schedule changed which causes you to be away from home for longer periods of time?

Cats, while not as gregarious as dogs, still enjoy and desire companionship with their owners. If a cat feels lonely, it is not unusual for it to cry for long periods of time. One easy solution may be to get another cat.

Of course you will need to introduce the new cat slowly and cautiously, making sure that you give more attention to the first cat. Giving your cat a companion or playmate can be especially helpful in this type of situation.

I don't think it is a good idea to allow pets to sleep on their owner's bed. One thing to try is setting up a small chair near your bed and making it cozy with a blanket.

Show the cat her bed and whenever she jumps on your bed, gently but firmly place her on her chair. It may take a few nights, but she will get the message and still be able to be near you for security.

If you have questions concerning a pet's health, write Dr. Wynn Jones, MSU/CVM, Box 9825, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

ASK THE V.A.

By Donald Mauffray

Agent Orange
list expands

By Donald Mauffray, CVSO
Vietnam veterans suffering from respiratory cancers or multiple myeloma are eligible for VA service-connected disability. The addition of multiple myeloma, a bone cancer, and respiratory cancers of the lung, larynx or trachea brings to seven the number of ailments linked by VA to Agent Orange exposure.

VA expects to be able to issue disability guidelines for the new cancers by early 1995.

The two additions come on the heels of a VA announcement last summer that the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) had found positive links to Agent Orange for prophyria cutanea tarda and Hodgkin's disease.

Sen. John D. "Jay" Rockefeller, chairman of the Senate Committee on Veterans Affairs, applauded VA's decision, but said, "I am concerned with VA's failure to include prostate cancer in the conditions that will be provided presumptive service connection."

Rockefeller said the NAS study showed prostate cancer was strongly linked to exposure to Agent Orange.

Although the NAS report did show a connection between Agent Orange and prostate cancer and a probably link with peripheral neuropathy, VA Secretary Brown chose not to add them to the list of ailments linked to Agent Orange.

Brown has asked the NAS to make studies on these two illnesses a top priority. It is expected to report its findings by July 1995.

Sen. Rockefeller also expressed disappointment over Brown's failure to follow NAS suggestions to create an independent study of troops exposed to Agent Orange.

In a prepared statement, Brown said he asked the NAS to help VA develop and test models of herbicide exposure that could be used in future studies of Vietnam veterans. However, no move has been made to begin the process, and the statement did not mention a timetable for further study.

Quite likely, this was only a move to placate veterans and veteran advocates such as The American Legion, The Disabled American Veterans, The Veterans of Foreign Wars and other veterans organizations.

Hancock Women's Club

The Hancock Women's Club met for their Christmas luncheon at the Galley, Waveland Resort Inn, on Thursday, December 9, with Loraine Townsend presiding. Lollie Backlund was the only guest present.

The business meeting was kept short in order to give more time to Christmas festivities. Townsend announced the upcoming garage sale to be held at her house had been set for the first Saturday in February, which is the 5th.

Members should start gathering and saving items for the sale now. They should be prepped and taken to Townsend's home any time during the week before the sale.

Two new members, Margaret Prevou and Dee Wendling, will be accepted in the vacancies created by two club members who have resigned.

The nominating committee will provide a slate of officers for the coming year at the January meeting, with voting at the February meeting. Nominations from the floor will also be accepted at both of these meetings.

There will be no fun and games day this month. The next board meeting will be at 10 am, Monday, January 3 at the Bay St. Louis Library.

The regular monthly luncheon meeting will be at 11 am, Thursday, January 13 at the Waveland Resort Inn. The January fun and games day will be a fundraiser: bingo, with "white elephants" as prizes.

Riverview FCE Club

Riverview FCE Club president Jean Barrett called the monthly meeting to order in the home of Clyde Richardson.

Award chairman Alice Green reminded all members to have award sheets turned in at the December meeting.

Global and cultural arts chairman Kay Buccola thanked all for the old eyeglasses, which were given to the Lions Club, and for the used greeting cards that were sent to the St. Jude Ranch for Children. She asked that members keep collecting them. She also reminded everyone to start preparing for the Cultural Arts Fair in April.

Barrett said the council has plans for a trip on the Trolley, which would go to the Marina in Biloxi, stop for lunch at a casino, then head back home.

She also congratulated the doll/bear winners Alice Green and Margie Welsh. She thanked the drama group cast for the kit, The Broomstick Beauty, put on last month.

A collection was made for the Hancock County Food Pantry. Material was purchased for a project to make receiving blankets for the health department.

Plans were finalized for the Christmas party at Armand's Restaurant.

After the business meeting, Charles Gray from the Historical Society gave an interesting and educational program about Bay St. Louis.

Adult Literacy Education

Classes for adults who want to learn to read and write are available through the Hancock County Library System. The program is open free to any adult, age 16 and above, who wants to prepare for the GED high school equivalency exams or improve their basic skills for employment.

Classes are being offered in basic skills — mathematics, writing, reading, critical thinking, computer literacy — at the Literacy location in the Waveland Library, 333 Coleman Avenue.

Call Donna Hutchings, Hancock County Literacy coordinator at 467-9240 for information. Persons who wish to volunteer as literacy tutors to teach adults to read are also encouraged to call.

The Hancock County Literacy Program, sponsored by the Hancock County Library System, is funded through a Jobs Partnership Training Act (JPTA) grant and matching library system funds.
